Safety First

Avoid Distractions at Stoneco Facilities

Distractions are the cause of a large percentage of accidents that take place everywhere. When distracted, we run the risk of doing whatever the task at hand is in an unsafe manner. Distractions can often either set you, or someone else up for injury. Stoneco values all customers, vendors, and visitors that come to our operations and would like to remind everyone to stay alert to possible distractions while visiting our operations. A common distraction that has been observed at Stoneco operations is multitasking while driving which can include talking on cell phones or text messaging. Multitasking can cause anyone to take their eyes off the road or hands off the wheel. Workplace distractions are common, but training can help remind you to keep your mind on the task at hand. Speak up and report any repeated and/or unsafe distractions you notice while visiting our operations to Stoneco Management.

Headlights

There is a mandatory headlight policy at all of our operations which states that all trucks must keep their headlights on at all times during low light and night time conditions. This policy is from the Mine Safety and Health Administration and violators could be subject to penalties based on MSHA regulations.
